

The story of "The March Angel", it is I believe a good example of the kind of inspiration that Amanda and her memory gives us all. The Angel of March brings us stamina and courage. As winter ends we take heart from the crocuses that push their way through the snow. The Angel of March cheers us on through life's frozen moments; boosting our morale and helping us achieve new landmarks. With the Angels' help we dare to break through whatever barrier that holds us back. We gather the will to launch a life long dream or begin the project we have envisioned but never dared to tackle. As the sun begins to warm our spirits, the March Angel rejoices with us at the first signs of spring and lends us courage to prepare for a new and daunting, but also fulfilling, task. The March Angel gives us the strength to go on. May we all take inspiration from Amanda's life, stamina and courage.

This story was sent to me by a friend but came too late for the March posting. I apologize for not knowing the source.
